Lovers in a Fix—The Dangers of Pitch.

The Memphis Argus of July 23 relates the following:

Night before last, as the moon rose over the hills and tree tops, gilding the spires of our beautiful city with her silvery rays, there might have been seen upon the roof of an Egyptian cottage, which is flat and covered with pure white gravel and pitch, a couple of lovers, seated and enjoying the beauties of the scene, and

"Though flew the hours, the happy moments few
So warm with heart, so rich with love they flew,
That their full souls forgot the will to roam,
And rested there, as in a dream at home!"

The sun during the day had been very warm, and thus they met to spend the fleeting hours of twilight, enjoying the pleasant breeze that floated up from the magnolia garden beneath and interchanging those soul-longings and warm affections for each other. Seated near each other, the lovers sat; with one arm he encircled the waist of the beautiful creature at his side.

"Her little hand lay trustingly, confidingly, in his"

and all passed quietly and lovingly until the bell tolled the midnight hour.

None but the loving and beloved
Should be awake at this," sweet hour,"

The tolling of the bell reminded them that

"Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep" was requisite for lovers as well as others. Still seated near each other the plighted vows were again exchanged and sealed with kisses, like

"Linked sweetness long drawn out."

At length, after many vain attempts to sever these pleasant pleasures, the transported lovers found they were bound to each other by more sticking bonds than lovers' vows.

The hot sun had melted the pitch, and after sitting so long, and the night air having cooled the resinous matter, they found they were "stuck fast." The young gentleman first attempted to disengage himself, but found, like aunt Jemima's plaster, "the more you try to pull it off, the tighter it sticks the faster." The young lady then attempted to get up, which she did, minus the skirt of her dress and all her underclothes, as far as the "tilters."

In this plight she attempted to relieve her disconsolate partner, but it was no use—he couldn't come.

After some parley he came to the conclusion he could manage it by slipping out of his pants. Accordingly he asked of his companion if she could lend him a pair of pants until he could go home. She thought her pa's would do if they were not too long. With this information he slipped off his boots, and loosing his suspenders drew himself out of his pants as easily as possible, and the disconsolate couple took themselves down stairs in a very blushing manner. The lady procured as quickly as possible a pair of her father's pants, which were run into pretty quick, and the Adonis decamped with his pants rolled up about six inches. The joke was too good to be kept by little and little it leaked out until the truth had to come to exculpate the happy innocents.

A French writer, in describing the trading powers of the genuine Yankee, said: "If he was cast away on a desolate island, he'd get up the next morning and go around selling maps to the inhabitants.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUG. 4, 1866.

THE FENIAN PRISONERS.

Our dingy morning cotemporary is very much exercised over the action of Congress in regard to the Fenian prisoners, and calls loudly for the punishment of those "ragged Patriots" who "marshaled themselves in war-like array, invaded a friendly country, plundered and killed some of the inhabitants thereof."

So far as we are concerned, we favor the release of the Fenians now held in custody by the United States, although we do not approve of the means adopted by them to secure their independence. But we must recollect that their movement was encouraged by a very large and influential class of our citizens. The Government in its wisdom saw the policy of allowing the movement to come to a head and then administering a crushing blow; hence no warning was given to the members of the organization, although the authorities at Washington were well aware of their designs; and now that the Government has adopted and carried out the most vigorous measures to suppress the movement—all, in fact, that England herself could have asked, and much more than she had any right to expect—we see no reason why the insignificant and harmless body of men now detained in custody should not be set at liberty as well as such men as Lee, Beauregard, Stephens and a host of others who have caused the shedding of so much innocent blood.

But we cordially approve of many of the arguments aduced in the article referred to, which demands punishment for the shedding of innocent blood. They are new principles for the Polygamous Journals of Utah to advocate, and we herald it as one of the fruits of the great work of "regeneration" now going on in this Territory. There are many of our citizens who recollect when, in September, 1857, a body of men "marshaled themselves in warlike array and plundered and killed" 140 men, women and children at Mountain Meadows. They also recollect how Judge Cradlebaugh was thwarted and his life threatened at Provo City in 1859, because of his efforts to investigate the affair. Neither have they forgotten how innocent men, women and children were cannonaded at Morristown because they refused to obey the mandates of Brigham Young.

We repeat that to those familiar with the history of those scenes, the principles above advocated, are an encouraging omen, and it is not altogether impossible that our Polygamous friends may yet arrive at that standard of integrity and dignity which will enable them to exercise that influence which they claim in the following paragraph, from the article already referred to:

Now we call on our honorable M. C.'s to quit bemeaning themselves in any such bemeaning manner, but rather to stand upright like men and act like reasonable and accountable beings, upholding the integrity, honor and dignity of the nation, as it becomes them to do. We are forward to do our full share in that regard, but it is not fair that the whole responsibility of preserving the integrity and dignity of the nation should fall on the shoulders of the people of Utah, who are few in number.—That is not fair; and they seek not either the onerousness or the honor of such an arrangement.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

Details of the Battles of Sudowa and Podell Bridge—Effects of the Needle Gun—Horrible Scenes.

[From the New York Sun.]

At the battle near Sudowa, on the 3d inst., in which the Austrians met with such signal defeat, the Prussians were commanded by the King in person.—They met the Austrians under Benedek between Horitz and Koniggratz. The battle lasted twelve hours. Until 10 o'clock a. m. the battle was favorable to the Austrians, but after that hour the advantages were with the Prussians. At 2 o'clock, p. m., after an obstinate defence, the Prussians carried by storm the strong position of the Austrians, after which the Austrians were quickly driven out of other positions, and by 7 o'clock p. m. the Austrians were in full retreat to Koniggratz, pursued by the Prussian cavalry. The Austrians were in a complete rout. The road was strewn with baggage which they threw away. The number of killed and wounded on both sides was great, but owing to the extent of the battle-field it had not been ascertained. The Prussians claim to have captured, up to the evening of the 4th, fourteen thousand unwounded prisoners, one hundred and sixteen cannon and several flags. Three Austrian Archdukes are reported wounded. Prince Liebtenstein and Prince Windishgratz were taken prisoners.—General Festitus, commander of an Austrian corps, lost a leg. General Countlaume was shot in the head, and Colonel Bender and another staff officer were killed.

The correspondent of the London Times thus describes some of the scenes attendant upon the defeat of the Austrians at the battle of Podell Bridge:

A party of Austrians fell back from the point where shots were first exchanged, and where the railway crosses the road along the line. They were pushed by some Prussian detachments, but neither side was here in strong force, and the principal fighting was done upon the road, but here, too, the needle-gun showed its advantage over the old-fashioned weapons of the Austrians, for the latter fell in the proportion of six to one Prussian. The Prussians pushed over both bridges after the retreating Austrians; the latter threw a strong detachment into a large unfinished house which stands by the chausee, about a quarter of a mile beyond the bridge, and again made a stand, but not of long duration; they had lost many killed, wounded and prisoners; many of their officers were dead or taken; but they stood till they could gather in all the stragglers who had escaped from the houses of the village, and, harrassed by the pursuing Prussians, drew off sullenly by the main road to Muchengratz.—Thus terminated a contest which brought on both sides all the greatest energy and determination, yet resulted in a complete victory for the Prussians. After the last Austrian shot ceased, there was no Austrian soldier within three miles of Podell Bridge, except the wounded and the taken.

The scenes in the vicinity of the battle next morning were of the most terrible and heart-rending description.—The same correspondent says:

The road to Podell was crowded with hospital wagons and ambulance cars, bringing in the wounded; every cottage in the way was converted into a temporary hospital, and the little village of Swierzin was entirely filled with stricken men. The field bothers, one of the most useful corps which any army possesses, were at work from the very beginning of the action. As the combatants passed, these noble-minded men, regardless of the bullets and careless of personal danger, removed, with equal hand both friend and enemy who were left writhing on the road, and carried them carefully to the rear, where the medical officers seemed to make no distinction in their care for both Austrian and Prussian Soldiers not on duty might be seen carrying water for prisoners of both sides alike, and gladly afforded any comfort which it was in their own power to give to those who, over night, had been firing against their own hearts. In the village the utmost disorder gave evidence of the severity of the contest. Austrian knapsacks, shakos, clothes and arms were scattered about in wild confusion. Dead horses lay in the ditches by the roadside. White coats and cloaks, which had been thrown off in the fight, lay scattered along the road; the trees which had formed the Austrian barricade were still on the side of the street, and held many a bullet.—The cottages had been ransacked of their furniture, and their beams and roof-trees had been torn down to form defences for the doors and windows; while along the street and upon the banks of the river lay objects which in the distance looked like bundles of untidy uniforms, but which on nearer approach are seen to be the bodies of slain soldiers. Sometimes they lie in groups of twos and threes, twisted together as if they had gripped one another in their mortal agony, and sometimes single figures lay on their backs, staring with livid countenance and half-closed hazy eyes straight up against the hot morning sun. The dark blue uniform with red facings of Prussia, and the white with the light blue of Austria, lie side by side, but the numbers of the latter much preponderate, and on one part of the railway three Prussian corpses opposite to nineteen Austrian, form a grisly trophy of the superiority of the needle-gun. The medical officers have officially reported that the proportion of wounded Austrians to wounded Prussians is as five to one. Thus has the needle gun told both on the battle-field and in the hospital.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION VEDETTE.]

Appointment of Delegates to the Philadelphia Convention.

The New Orleans Convention—Instructions of President Johnson—Particulars of the Riot.

Movements in Regard to the Atlantic Cable.

New York, August 2.

The Post's money article says: A very lively movement prevailed on stock exchange to-day. Governments steady, but inactive. Cotton dull and prices easier. Flour dull and 10@20c lower.—Corn 1c lower. After board adjourned, old 5-20's were ¼ better on bidding, supposed to be owing to news by cable, but no public news has transpired to-day.

Twelve messages were entered to-day for Europe. Receipts, $8,312 in gold.

Heart's Content, July 31.

The President's message to the Queen, containing 77 words, passed through the cable in 11 minutes, and was delivered to the Queen almost immediately. The Great Eastern is now firing a salute in honor thereof.

A celebration in honor of the success of the cable is being held at Valencia, Ireland, this p. m.

The Albany and Terrible leave here to-morrow morning for the spot where the cable of last year was lost. The Great Eastern and Medway will follow in about one week.

Chicago, August 3.

The late appointment of delegates for the Philadelphia Convention include the following names from Illinois:

O H Browning, Thos E Evans, A J Kuykendell, J A McClernand, Wm R Morrison, T S Dickey, Sam S Marshall, Jesse O Norton, L W Ross, Anthony Thornton, and Jas C Robinson.

From Wisconsin—I R Doolittle, Alex W Ritenhall, Hans Crocker.

From Minnesota—Dan. S Norton, H M Rice, and Franklin Steele.

From Florida—Wm McCoen, Geo S Hawkins, and John S. Maxwell.

Delegations are being generally appointed in the Southern States of most eminent military and civilians.

The New York Times having editorially declared it would be imprudent for such men as Vallandigham and the Woods to appear as delegates, Vallandigham publishes a defiant letter, defying the convention to exclude him or any other who may appear. He says, by-gones must be by-gones, and he and his party have more to forgive of Doolittle, Raymond, &c., than they to forgive of him.

The Georgia Convention declares the ultimation that the convention shall unqualifiedly pronounce for repeal of the test oath, which the call for a convention does not do.

Senator Doolittle, in a speech at Madison, declared that the only qualification for membership to the convention is that delegates unqualifiedly accept terms laid down in the call, and abide by the decisions of new parties, when the past record of individuals shall be forgotten.

The convention promises to be a large and distinguished assemblage, and as the number of delegates are not limited all rival sets will be admitted, indeed, confessedly, there is no power to exclude any who accept the terms of the call the struggle will then be made which side of the convention shall control and the lead the other.

The Philadelphia Age, Administration exposes what it calls the Radical plot to mob the convention.

The Louisiana Convention did not, as was expected, re-nominate Governor Hahn, but that they should make members of the convention the deciding power in and plotting against the authority of the State government. He declared the cause of the riot had no parallel in history.

The following telegraphic correspondence is published:

Executive Office, August 1.

Albert Voorhies, Asst. Gov., and Andrew J. Herron, Attorney General, New Orleans, Louisiana—

Were the civil authorities State of Federal conferred with by Gen. Baird before he declared martial law? Could not the civil authorities State and Federal enforce the law and preserve order with the aid of military, and without the necessity of martial law? I hope that order has been restored and that the riot is not as disastrous as reported. Please show this dispatch to Gen. Baird.

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON.

In order that the following from Gen. Sheridan be fully understood, it should be stated that he was absent from New Orleans when the disturbance commenced in that city:

New Orleans, 11 P. M., Aug. 1.

Gen. U. S. Grant, Washington—

You are doubtless aware of the serious riot which occurred in this city on the 30th ult., that the political body, styling itself the convention of 1864, met on the 30th for the alleged purpose of remodelling the present Constitution of the State. The leaders were political agitators and revolutionary men, and the action of the convention was liable to produce breaches of public peace. I had made up my mind to arrest the head men if the proceedings of the convention were calculated to disturb the tranquility of the department, but I had no cause for action, until they committed an overt act. About forty whites and blacks were killed and about one hundred and sixty wounded. Everything is now quiet, but I deem it best to maintain military supremacy in the city a few days, until the affair is fully investigated. I believe the sentiment of the general community is a great regret at this unnecessary cruelty, and that the police could have made any arrest they saw fit, without sacrificing lives.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN,
Major General Commanding.

Maj. Gen. Francis J. Herron, an Iowa soldier, of Democratic antecedents, who settled on Red river since the war was lately appointed a delegate from Louisiana to the Philadelphia Convention.

Judge A. Bell and General Dick Taylor, belonging to the same delegation.

Gen. Herron publishes the following letter:

Mr. Roeder, Chairman of Democratic Central Committee—

Dear Sir—After the scenes of yesterday, which I witnessed, I must respectfully decline as a member of the delegation, appointed by your Committee, to attend the Philadelphia Convention. I believe the fate of the State to be settled by yesterday's action, and any attempt to help matters just now would, in my opinion, be useless. Respectfully

F. J. HERRON.
Chicago, August 3.

The following dispatch was published in New York, Wednesday morning and was not telegraphed West:

Washington, July 30.

Andrew G. Herron, Attorney General of Louisiana—

You will call on Gen. Sheridan or whoever may be in command, for sufficient force to sustain the civil authorities in suppressing the illegal or unlawful assemblies who usurp or assume to exercise any power of the people of the State. If there is to be a convention let it be composed of delegates chosen from the people of the whole State. The people must be first consulted; no changing of organized laws of the State; usurpation will not be tolerated; the law and constitution must be sustained, and thereby peace and order.

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON.

The New York Herald of the 1st says there appears to be great want of information among the business community, in relation to the new tariff bill, which, it appears, was passed by a compromise in the last hours of the session and signed by the President; but a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury says the tariff does not affect goods now in bond. The new rates will attach to goods imported on and after the 10th of August, at which date, also, the ninth section, which requires addition of actual charges and expenses of transportation to the value of imported goods, will be enforced.

The National Intelligencer says this ninth section was smuggled in to quiet the woolen manufacturers, who had twice in the Senate defeated bills raising the duty on wool.

[NOTE.—The rate of duty on wool is not anywhere stated. The official bill is not yet published.—REPORTER.]

The bill imposes a duty on cigars of three dollars a pound; fifty per cent. ad valorem on cotton; three cents a pound on all compounds of which distilled spirits are component parts, the same duty as on spirituous liquors.

Section two allows vessels trading between the Sicily Islands or the Sandwich Islands and the United States to pay tonnage duty but once a year.

[NOTE.—These items are derived from the New York shipping list.

The New York Tribune says that it is understood the proclamation relative to the importation of cigars in packages of less than three thousand will be deemed to take effect on and after the 10th of August, it being apparent that this was intended by Congress.

[By REPORTER.—The evils of hasty legislation in the closing hours of the session are apparent in this bill no less than in the so-called currency bill, which by including the equalization of bounties of soldiers enabled Congressmen to raise their own pay to $5,000 per annum. It is now discovered that the sections relating to bounties were so unskillfully drawn as to be almost, if not entirely, valueless, and the Secretary of War has appointed Gen. Canby, Surgeon General Barnes and Col. Buchanan to consider what may be done under it. The number of soldiers benefitted will be very few. No law, however, is discovered to add anything relating to Congressmen's pay.

The Cholera—Over 1,400 Deaths in Holland—The Disease in Germany and France.

[From the London Lancet.]

Riveted by the war which has broken out on the continent, the public attention for the moment has been diverted from the cholera. The progress of the disease in Eastern as well as Western Europe has, however, during the past month, been such as to require narrow attention. The epidemic has broken out in Jassi, Fecktchani, and other towns of Moldo Wallachian territory. It is to be presumed also that the malady resumed its activity in the south-western provinces of European Russia, as active measures against it have been already adopted in St. Petersburg.

In Holland the disease is widely prevalent. From its first appearance in May (?) to the 13th of June, 724 cases and 431 deaths have been reported in Leden; 216 cases and 125 deaths in St. Gravanhage; 396 cases and 220 deaths in Delft; 606 cases and 433 deaths in Rotterdam; 100 cases and 50 deaths in Gouda, and 305 cases and 169 deaths in Utrecht.

In Prussia cholera has declared itself in Stettin, Berlin, Swinemunde, Frankfort on the Order, Feunstedt, Eberwald, Commin, Arnswalde and several villages. From the 2d to the 9th of June there were 108 fatal cases in Stettin; 65 cases occurred in two days at Arnswalde.

The disease has not yet shown much activity in Berlin and vicinity; the cases, indeed, would appear to have been scattered mainly in the suburbs. The epidemic still lingers in the neighborhood of Allenburg (Saxony), and it is expected to have shown itself at Chemnitz and near Echternach, on the Rhine.

The need for watchfulness at Liverpool is taught by what has befallen Antwerp. A short time ago cholera broke out on board an emigrant ship, the Agnes, in Antwerp port. The disease has now appeared in this city, and to the 10th of June there had been 84 deaths and 180 cases, irrespective of those which had taken place among the emigrants on board the Agnes.

In France the epidemic has broken out in several places, and it was recently prevailing with great intensity at Amiens.

Cholera still shows itself from time to time among emigrant ships sailing from Liverpool to the United States.

The latest news from the East, while confirming the information of cholera having appeared among the returning Mahommedan pilgrims at Jedda, leads to the conclusion that the previous reports of the number of cases there were exaggerated. One of the caravans on the route to Medina is, however, believed to have suffered severely. The pilgrims who had reached and traversed the Low Egypt were said to be entirely free from the disease.

From California.

(From the Enterprise.)

San Francisco, July 6.

Wilhelmina Penmore, wife of James E. Penmore, has applied to Judge Sawyer for the custody of her children.

The Coroner's jury summoned to inquire into the matter of the death of A. B. Paine, found the deceased was a native of New York, aged 50 years, and that he came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by himself during a temporary fit of insanity, at Second Lake, in the city and county of San Francisco, on or about the 30th day of July, 1866.

Walter Welsh, publisher of the Sunday Varieties was convicted in the County Court yesterday for libel in having published an article reflecting on a Mr. Sheldon.

The Union County Convention held another meeting last evening which resulted in the nomination of Hosea M. Hastings for City Attorney, and P. Crowley for Chief of Police. Burns, the present Chief, receiving only nine votes for the latter office. The names of John P. H. Wentworth, J. M. Buffington and H. M. Hale were then put in nomination for Auditor, when a motion to adjourn to next Monday evening at 8 o'clock was made and carried.

By bark Monitor, twenty-three days from Honolulu, we have Hawaiian dates to July 2d. United States Ministers Burlingame and Van Valkenberg were still at Honolulu, but were expected to leave July 4th on the bark Swallow.

The receipts of treasure from the interior continue fair, and for the month will exceed $4,000,000.

The sales of stocks, legal tenders, etc., for the week, aggregate $314,292, against $493,406 for the previous week.

There is no change in the rates of exchange and bullion for Monday's steamer, except a slight advance in gold bars, now held at 870@880. The demand for money is good, perhaps a little pressing in some quarters, but bankers' rates are unchanged, at 1@1½ per cent.

Terrible Effect of the Prussian Needle Gun.

[From the London Daily News.]

It is impossible to look forward without anxiety to the news which may be expected from Bohemia within the next few days. Considering the losses which the armies have sustained, the Generals on both sides might well be inclined to suspend for a while the work of mutual destruction. The most recent battles have been exceedingly sanguinary. The Prussian needle gun, as all bear witness, has been wielded with a terrible effect, which has made a deep effect on the ill-armed Austrian troops. A military correspondent, who saw the fighting at Podell, declares that the Austrians who fell under the fire of the infantry were, compared to the Prussians, six to one.—On the other hand, the Austrians have more than once, and notably at Gitschin, had the advantage of strong positions, which enabled them to inflict heavy loss upon their adversaries. The Prussians are publishing extraordinary accounts of their enemy's losses. To these little importance should be attached. But if we could be certain that the Austrians had taken as many prisoners as the Prussians, the losses of the two armies, from all sources, since yesterday week, could not be estimated at less than 50,000 men.

An Omission in the Morrill Tariff Bill.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, who has studied the tariff question, writes:

There is one thing that Morrill forgot to put into the Tariff Bill, and that is a provision to prevent people from greasing their wheels, so as to create a demand for more horses, and encourage horse breeding. Vermont is a horse-breeding State, and would be made wonderfully prosperous by such a law.

It was once the custom in Ireland to work horses by the tail. It took ten horses to draw a load by the tail, which one horse could draw by the shoulders. When horse collars came in fashion there was great resistance to it on the part of the Morrills of the period. They declared that they would all be ruined unless they continued to work their horses by the tail. Horse-breeding would be stopped, and all who were engaged in it would be thrown out of employment. Pasturage would be done for. People would squander their money on foreign harness, creating a balance of trade against them, and there would be no home market for anything. The Morrills carried their point for a while, but were eventually beaten.

A WIDOWER of Clyde, N. Y., recently married a widow of Rochester, without, however, having informed her that he had seven children. The bride had been equally reticent in regard to her five pledges of the affection of husband No. 1. Mutual explanation were soon in order.

WILKINSON & PENN.

THE saucy editor of the Brunswick Telegraph says the ladies' hoops, on a windy day, give ocular demonstration of a spring opening. He has apparently been studying the latest fashion plates.

A Portsmouth lady takes the names of two of its subscribers from its list because they were recently hung. The publisher says he was compelled to be severe.

The Paris Gaulois describes Bismark's personal appearance as follows: Broad forehead, firm, resolute mouth, and soldierlike person, brilliant and singularly restless eyes rather take from the otherwise thoroughly German character of his features.
